

What began as a mission to save more pets ended up transforming an entire community.

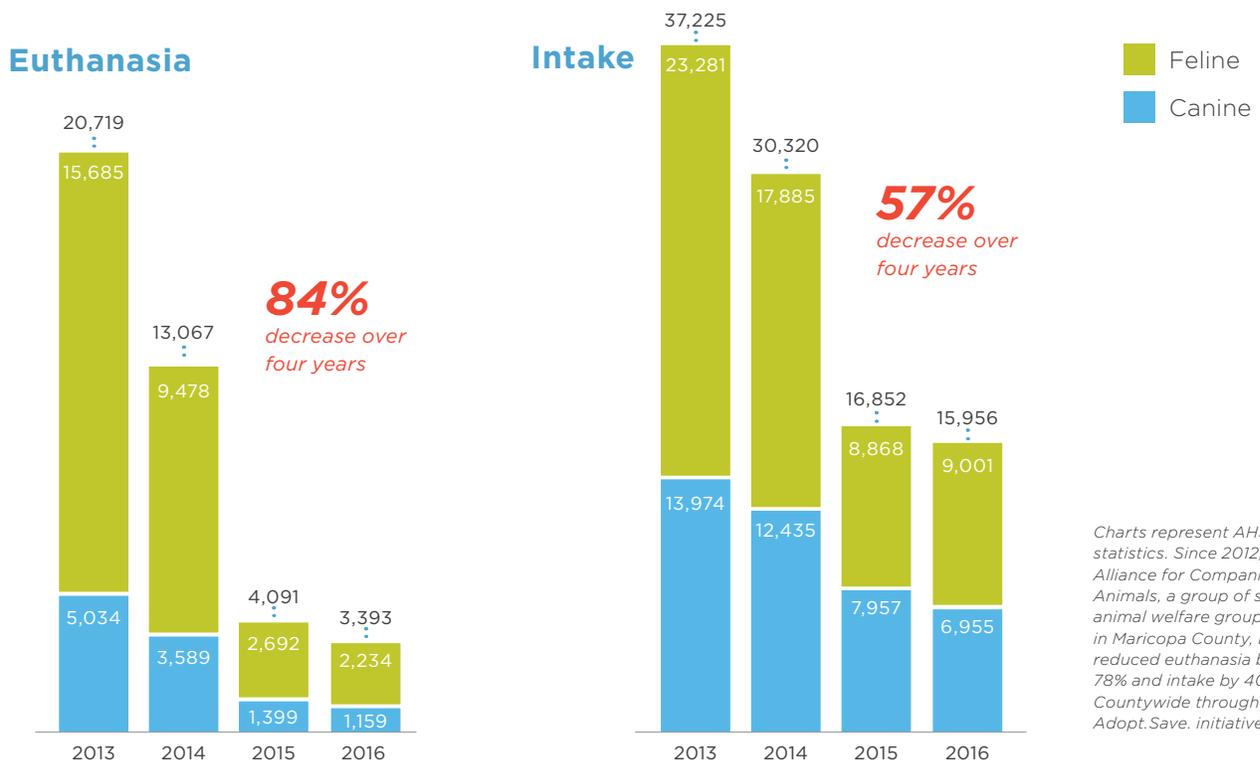

For nearly 60 years, the Arizona Humane Society has been committed to serving both the pets and people of our community. In our mission to improve the lives of animals, AHS has never been content to be just another animal welfare organization. Four years ago, we embarked on the most comprehensive reassessment of every program and procedure with the ultimate goal of making Maricopa County one of the best places to be a pet – not one of the worst. We invented a new playbook for animal welfare, which served as the catalyst for the most rapid change AHS has ever experienced. Through leadership and collaboration, we introduced new intake and adoption processes, implemented several innovative life-saving programs and focused on providing resources to help keep pets in homes. As we continue to provide the best solution for pets and people, we know that now, more than ever before, we are truly making our community a better place for animals.

Behold the transformative power of innovation, compassion and excellence.

Once home to the “second worst pet overpopulation crisis in the United States,” Maricopa County is now ground zero for the nation’s most innovative work with homeless animals and pet owners in need.

Charts represent AHS statistics. Since 2012, The Alliance for Companion Animals, a group of seven animal welfare groups in Maricopa County, has reduced euthanasia by 78% and intake by 40% Countywide through the Fix. Adopt. Save. initiative.

ARIZONA HUMANE SOCIETY

The most comprehensive care in our community.

AHS serves a unique role, providing leading-edge medical and behavioral care and innovative solutions that are helping us save more lives than ever, even animals who are considered “untreatable” by other shelters.
