

MALFORMED LIMB

MEDICAL DISCLOSURE FOR MALFORMED LIMB

It has been determined the pet has a malformed limb. It is suspected that this is due to either a congenital abnormality or previous trauma to the leg. The pet still occasionally uses the limb and does not seem painful. While the abnormality may not be causing any clinical signs at this time, there is no way to determine if it will cause a problem in the future. They may develop arthritis in those areas as they age and may require medications to help make them comfortable as they get older. Routine check-ups with your regular veterinarian are recommended. All follow-up care will need to be done at the owner's veterinarian and at the owner's expense.
