

RINGWORM

MEDICAL DISCLOSURE FOR RINGWORM (TREATED)

This pet completed treatment for ringworm after testing positive for the skin disease. Ringworm is a fungal infection of the skin that is similar to athlete's foot in humans. It causes patches of hair loss; affected areas of the body are often scaly and may have redness and/or itching. Ringworm is contagious to other animals and is communicable to humans either via direct contact or contact with infected items. As previously mentioned, this pet has completed treatment for ringworm and has re-tested negative at least 2 consecutive times prior to being put up for adoption. Due to the negative tests, the infection is suspected to be cleared and the pet is unlikely to spread disease at this time. In the rare event that your pet or yourself develops skin lesions that look like ringworm, please consult your own family veterinarian or physician respectively. All follow-up care, if needed, will need to be done at the owner's veterinarian and at the owner's expense.
